For Immediate Release - Akinori Matsumoto Sound Garden May 12 - June 15, 2022.

The Flinn Gallery is pleased to announce the return of beloved Japanese sculptor and sound artist Akinori Matsumoto for the final exhibition of the 2021-22 season. Akinori Matsumoto *Sound Garden is a site-specific multi-dimensional sound and shadow art installation, curated by Francene Langford and Dianne Niklaus. In 2015, the gallery presented the artist's solo debut in the U.S., Akinori Matsumoto Sound Sculptures, which captivated visitors and lured them back for more, resulting in record-breaking attendance.

With a career spanning over four decades, Matsumoto boasts an extensive resume of exhibitions and collections in his native Japan and throughout Asia, in festivals, galleries and museums. He is the recipient of numerous grants and awards.

Coinciding with Asian Heritage month, an opening reception will be held at the gallery on Thursday May 12, from 6-8 pm. Co-curators Langford and Niklaus, who have each lived in Japan, are excited to bring this unique blend of contemporary and traditional aesthetics to the Greenwich community. "Akinori considers this exhibition to be the culmination of his life's work," says Niklaus. Langford adds, "He wishes to offer an Asian art perspective, one which has unique sensibilities and expressions that contrast with Western aesthetics and values."

Featuring a delightful menagerie of 'sound objects' handmade by the artist from bamboo, wood, and paper, Akinori Matsumoto Sound Garden will feature locally sourced native plant materials including generous donations of bamboo stalks from Sleepy Cat Farm and heirloom apple and cherry tree branches gathered from the grounds of the Greenwich Historical Society. As distinctive as his use of sound, Matsumoto's fascination with shadows is a central theme of the current installation. Screens are used to partition and conceal dozens of objects, which are illuminated from behind to cast a three-dimensional shadow-play effect as visitors enter and meander through an immersive audio-visual experience. Combining elements of music, theater and art, the result is an organically live acoustic performance and enchanting visual display. Matsumoto's intent is playful and he delights in full audience engagement. "There is no beginning and no end to my music, nor is the combination of sounds composed by chance. As they are lit from behind, visitors are projected onto the screen and participate in my work." Don't miss the opportunity to participate in this magical environment of motion, shadow play and transportive sensory experience. While the elements of the installation will not be for sale, the artist has created a wonderful collection of 'otokin' kinetic sound creations, which will be available to purchase, accessibly priced from $100-$300.
